Concept

In the context of this information model, alcohol is the collective term for alcoholic beverages consumed as a leisure product. This information model describes the information asked of the patient about their alcohol use.

Purpose

During the social anamnesis, the patient is frequently asked about their alcohol consumption. Excessive (episodic) alcohol consumption may influence the current treatment and diagnostics. Alcohol-related problems are diagnosed as secondary diagnoses more and more often. Source: Guidelines - Multidisciplinary guidelines for Disorders in alcohol use (CBO, 2009)
